2.3.3 ICT ENABLED TOOLS

The Lecture halls, seminar hall, multi-purpose hall of the institution are Information Communications Technology (ICT) enabled with smart board, projectors, Local Area Network (LAN) and Wi-Fi connections.

ICT assisted teaching methods are practiced by all faculty members. Effective use of ICT and E-learning resources are helpful for the students to have in depth knowledge on the subject along with the class room sessions which is not the solitary source of information or knowledge for them. Students are encouraged to attend NPTEL lecture classes and read scientific publications for advanced topics in the syllabus. In the advanced topics, students who are identified as advanced learners are encouraged to register for MOOC courses. The Seminar and Projects provide an opportunity for students to explore latest developments in their discipline. For seminar presentation students are encouraged to do extensive search on the recent trends in their area of interest in their own discipline and interdisciplinary departments. They are insisted to refer latest research papers in reputed international journals to identify the topic. Each student will make a presentation using ICT tools. For Projects students are utilizing e-learning resources to identify the area of project. The ICT utilization also includes the access of course materials through remote devices, online digital repositories for lectures, course materials, and digital library, Online academic management systems through icampuz software, making use of handheld computers, tablet computers, audio players, projector devices etc. Digital library with NPTEL Video Lectures and ICT tools allow the students to pursue advanced courses to enhance their technical knowledge and skills. Students also prepare for OET, IELTS, competitive exams and placement activities through these mode of study. ICT is enhancing learning experiences and facilitating learning without time constraints. The learning activity of the student is becoming flexible and smoother.
